

MAJIK HOUSE

our quick guide to audio systems

What have you been listening to lately?

How many times have we been asked that simple question?

Increasingly that has meant "how" have you been enjoying your audio.

Vinyl and CD still have their place, but more and more of us are embracing the endless opportunities to discover (and re-discover) music via the web and broadband connectivity.

The end of the home music collection?

Not quite, but there's a whole world of sound out there just waiting to be discovered and enjoyed with crystal clarity throughout your home.

Let's talk about the way we like to listen to music or even TV sound for a minute:

We want the current music, what is in the charts, what our friends like and are listening to, what is new and we just heard on the radio in the car... and so on - how can we have this at home, in the kitchen, out in the garden or even on the go?

We need to be able to access all of this easily and find our chosen tracks or playlists or moods quickly - this needs for us to have accounts with the likes of Apple, Spotify, Napster or Tidal - and then for our various systems to be automatically linked to those chosen accounts.

It sounds complicated but it need not be!

Some of these accounts can even produce qualities of music higher than CD or High Res Audio as it has become known.

With some simple steps and guidance from us once set up the system will perform these things simply for you from your remote, keypad, tablet or touchscreen seamlessly.

KISS - Keep It Simple, Stupid - is exactly what proper design and integration will do for you.

If watching TV, then the sound will come out of the same speakers as when listening to music; going into the bathroom and pressing the 'bathe' button will set the lighting and turn on the top chill out tracks from your playlist at just the right volume for a sumptuous bath.

The speakers can be round, square, rectangular, pictures or even plastered over making them invisible in all but sound quality. In the garden they can be hidden behind plants, made to look like rocks or simply mounted on the eaves of the house.

In extreme cases when needs must they can even sometimes be wireless and above all these can all let you know if someone should call at the door or enable to announce that dinner is ready!

We want your room to look exactly as you prefer and the speakers should blend to fit this desire - we have solutions for almost everything and can show these to you in our experience centre, call to make a booking!

Inside or outside, there's no need to compromise on great quality audio.

Multi-room means multi-music.

Having everyone agree on the same music throughout the home simply isn't going to happen, but there's no need to compromise.

An intelligent multi-room system can provide flawless music throughout the home, where everyone can hear what they want, streamed from a central 'hub' or simply played by air in their room.

And a well designed multi-room system will also work with the equipment that everyone is comfortable with - smart phone, iPad, Control4 or Sonos, all working in perfect harmony.

See. Hear.

Whether you're a devoted hi-fi enthusiast, simply looking to get the best sound reproduction from your music collection or want an encompassing sound system for your movies and TV, we invite you to sound us out and hear what's behind the real music.

The team at Majik House will advise on the planning, the right components and installation to make sure you achieve the best audio experience every time.
